

WALL COLLAPSES, KILLING A MAN, INJURING TWO

Foreman of Work at Woodhaven Flees as Concrete Falls Upon Workmen.

A concrete cellar wall, twelve feet high, just completed at Jamaica avenue and Benedict street, Woodhaven, L. I., collapsed at noon to-day, killing one man and seriously injuring two others. As soon as the wall caved in the foreman, Tiro Simonelli, fled. Ozone Park station detectives are searching for him.

The dead man has not been identified. He was a laborer, about thirty-five years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall. The two men injured, William Morrowsky and Thomas Wenton, both of whom live in Woodhaven, were extricated quickly and, despite bruises and probable internal injuries, both insisted on aiding their companions to dig up the laborer under the debris.

Policeman Oelson called a St. Mary's Hospital ambulance from Jamaica, but by the time Dr. Brown examined the victim life was extinct. The rescued men declare that the boards holding the concrete were unable to support the weight. The work is being done by E. Wood, a Jamaica contractor, for Lewis & Faber, real estate dealers.

The body of the dead man, whose face was lacerated almost beyond recognition, is at the Jamaica Morgue. A charge of homicide has been prepared against the fleeing foreman.

CHANLER TELLS OF FAMILY BREAK

Began With Criticism Written by Brother on Book of Amelie Rives.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 16.—Sensational testimony was promised when John Armstrong Chanler (or Chalonier, as he has called himself in recent years), former husband of Amelie Rives, the author, and brother of Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, Democratic candidate for Governor of New York, took the witness stand to-day in his own behalf in the sanity proceeding before Commissioner Booth. The object of the suit is to legally establish Chanler's sanity and to recover his fortune, which he alleges has been confiscated by New York courts.

Mr. Chanler said he is a citizen of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., is a lawyer, and has written several books. He recently changed his name to the older spelling of Chalonier. He had travelled extensively, he said, in this country, South and Central America, and Europe. He testified that one of the causes for his feeling that exists between him and his brothers was that at the time of his engagement to Amelie Rives, the author, one of his brothers, Winthrop Astor Chanler, sent him a copy of her book, "The Quick or the Dead," with hostile criticism marked on the margin in blue pencil.

He showed this to his fiancée, the result being that she did not invite his brothers and sisters to the wedding, the single exception being Margaret Livingston Chanler, now Mrs. Richard Aldrich.
